EndNote X4 - Copying references between libraries

Multiple libraries can be maintained, but generally there is no need to do this. All references can be kept in the one library, and labelled or grouped to reflect any particular subject interest. We strongly recommend that you maintain one library only.

If you have more than one library, moving references from one library to another is very simple.

Your library should already be open.

Highlight the references you want to move to another library.

Go to References> Copy References To and select the appropriate option: New Library or Choose Library.
